Excerpt from Hand Book of Explosives: Instructions in the Use of Explosives for Clearing Land, Planting and Cultivating Trees, Drainage, Ditching, Subsoiling and Other Purposes Every possible acre of the farm should be used to its maximum capacity. The few acres of waste land on one farm is a personal matter that deserves the immediate attention of the individual farmer. The total aggregate of these spots is enormous and of the most serious concern to the nation. The causes of waste land usually are: stumps, boulders, wet spots, gullies and hardpan. The two accompanying sketches are to show how one or all of these troubles may reduce the workable size of the farm, and the farm after being made full size. Stumps cause Loafer Land by taking up space in the fields, by prohibiting economical cultivation, by making breeding places for weeds and crop pests, and make the farm unsightly. Our sketch shows them encumbering the most fertile field on the farm, and preventing the bringing of the back pasture into the much needed rotation.
