Hill: From the Plotting Citizen Confederacies in Worcester County, Mass A. Bacheller, Bates, J. F. Hebard, John Hill, C. A. Adams and others, spoke in favor of the motion. F. Walker thought more definite, reliable information relative to the routes, grade, tonnage and business to be accommodated was necessary. Dr. Tyler advocated caution and due consideration before taking such an important step; he was against raising five per cent of the town valuation; as he termed it, we were getting a baby on our hands which had got to be brought up on the bottle, and wisely advised the raising of but three per cent on our valuation, for the statutes on the 1st day of February next would prohibit the town's involving itself beyond said three per cent. I think too much of my native place to have it sunk in debt by this Boston bloater and glassware drummer, and a few more here, on the eve of bankruptcy, to be huddled into office, to filch the town...
