Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Voices From Russia The Bolsheviks constituted themselves the Government of Russia on November 7th, 1917. This action brought the period of indecision to an end; the workers were in power and all who opposed them were stamped as counter-revolutionary; it brought an end to the compromise between the Mensheviks and the bourgeoisie under the guise of revolutionary unity, and showed these two factions in their true colors, i. e., anti-working class. After November 7th, the class division in Russia stood out clearly; all the workers and poor peasants supported the Bolsheviks, and the land-owners, the bourgeoisie and their hangers on were anti-Bolsheviks. Soon after gaining power the Bolshevik Government drafted two decrees; one dealt with the armistice on all fronts, the other with the abolition of private ownership of land. By this means they enlisted the support of the workers and peasants with their cry of Peace and Land. Ninety per cent of the workers in Russia were sick of war, and any Government which hoped for success was bound to strive for peace. The Bolsheviks accepted the situation and entered into peace negotiations with the Central Powers. On December 10th a truce was signed and a peace conference was decided upon, to be held at Brest-Litovsk. The peace programme of the Bolsheviks - No indemnities, No annexations, and Self-determination of peoples, was essentially a working class programme, and these phrases could only be translated into realities when the workers of the world had become supreme. Fundamentally, the actions of the Bolsheviks at Brest-Litovsk were an invitation to the workers of Europe for a peace made by the workers through the overthrow of capitalism. To...
