Excerpt from Archeological Investigations at Paragonah, Utah: With Fifteen Plates Paragonah was reached early in July and the party at once centered its attention upon an elevation known locally as the big mound, a huge knoll measuring approximately 225 feet in diameter and 10 feet high. There were several reasons for this selection (i) It was the largest of those remaining and, notwithstanding the previous removal of the southern one-third and superficial evidence of other excavations, it still promised more perfect examples of architecture and deeper court deposits than adjacent mounds; (2) being in the way of proposed improvements, it was in imminent danger of complete reduction, with final loss of its archeologic contents and (3) exposure of the house-group which the big mound was thought to cover would form a fitting sequel to earlier studies of smaller elevations containing from one to five dwellings, together with their related structures.
