It was precisely a prompt and bold course whio I desired. I was not for war, nor reprisals, in the state of ad airs then existing; and we are now told that neither of these measures was contemplated by any member of the House. What, then, could we have done promptly and boldly? We could have done this. We could have taken up the subject as one of eminent importance, ad mitting no delay in the consideration of the House. We could have shown the justice of the American side of the question in the strongest terms. We could have uttered the feeling and views of this House, in the strongest and most emphatic language. Having shown the justice of our...
