Excerpt from The Southern Planter, Vol. 12: Devoted to Agriculture, Horticulture, and the Household Arts; September 1852 The nine counties I have named were selected as all being together in a connected group - and as under circumstances as nearly alike as could be found with the differences of position, c. Required for comparison. No space so large, and also embracing these required differences, can be found more alike in all other respects, and in general. It was necessary, for the very object sought, to take some counties abundantly supplied with marl and others without. Also it was necessary to select counties which had used marl or lime longest and the most extensively. Prince georg james City and Charles City are supposed to occupy this position. On parts of all, either marl or lime has been used longer and over more space, in proportion to their extent, than in any other counties. But even of these, not one-third of the arable, or one eighth of the whole surface has been yet marled or limed, whether sufficiently or insufficiently,...
