Excerpt: . . . 7 8 05 AC 145-10 302. TECHNICAL TRAINING. a. The repair stations technical training areas of study may be separate and distinct from indoctrination training and may apply to different categories of employees within a given job position. Technical training requirements should focus on providing employees with the appropriate skill or task training required to properly perform job position assignments. b. The repair station should have procedures to determine the applicable scope and depth of initial and or recurrent training based on each job assignment and each employees experience and capability established by the needs assessment ( see paragraph 401 ). The needs assessment is the basis for determining an individuals initial and recurrent training requirements. c. When developing the initial or recurrent training courses, the repair station may want to take into account that individuals will not have the same training, experience, and skill level. For example, when developing its initial course of study for technicians, a repair station may want to have separate programs for: ( 1 ) Individuals that hold an A and P certificate. ( 2 ) Individuals with experience performing similar tasks at another repair station. ( 3 ) Individuals with applicable military aviation maintenance experience. ( 4 ) Individuals with no skills, experience, or knowledge. d. A repair station may have more than one training course for its employees. For example, initial training for new repair station technicians with limited repair station experience may include the following in-depth courses: ( 1 ) Maintenance...
